This paragraph is from the last Washington letter of Mr. Kingman, the Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, and one of the Washington correspondents of the Batlmore Sun. He is a staunch democrat, advocating the election of Pierce and King. This democrat clearly sees, as all others must who will take the trouble to look, that the democratic flouse of Representatives, immediately after the adjournment of the democratic rational convention, passed a bill by a large majority in open and direct opposition to, and defiance of, one of the principal resolutions adopted by that convention as the platform of the national democracy.—Low. In regard to the general policy of the administration, if elected, I should, of course, look among those who spprove that policy for the agents to carry it into execution; and I should seek to cultivate harmony and fraternal seutiment throughout the whig party, without attempting to reduce its members by proscription, to exact uniformity to my views. But I should, at the same time, be rigorous in regard to qualificatiors for office, retaining and appointing no one either deficient in capacity or integrity, or in devotion to liberty to the constitution and the Union. Convinced that harmony or good will between the different quarters of our broad country is essential to the present and future interests of the Republic, and with a devotion to those interests that can know no South and no North, I should neither countenance nor tolerate any sellition, disorder, faction, or resistance to the law or the Union on any pretext, in any part of the land; and I should carry into the civil administration this one principle of military conduct—

We cast our banner's waving folds,
Upon the joyous breeze;
We send the camon's booming roar
O'er all our land and seas;
One joyous, glad and thrilling shout
From happy hearts arise;
"flurrah! hurrah! for PIRRCE and KING,"
Like thunder fills the skies. Like thunder fills the skies. The idol of our souls,
The idol of our souls,
These loud and thrilling shouts arise,
This note of triumph rolls.
O'et hill and dale it still flows on,

"The orange and the vine,"
From East and West, Irom North and South,
New Hampshire's weeth Like thunder fills the sky. With joyoua shouts we welcome now

Our people's chosen men,
But higher notes we soon shall rise
When we've elected them;
But still the glad and thrilling shout
From happy hearts shall rise,
"Hurrah! hurrah! for Pierce and King,"
Like thunder fills lhe skies.

It has been a time-honored custom among printers to keep the Fourth of July. This being the case, there will be to paper issued from our office to-morrow.

The Fourth of July.

The 4th of July occuring on the Sabbath, arrangemetns have been generally made to celebrate it to-day. This is a great national day which should ever be commemorated by the American people.

The citizens of the thirteen old States observe the anniversary of Freedom's natal day much more generally than we do in the young and growing States of the West and South. This should not be. The hardy pioneers who built their homes in the wilderness, and all their sons and daughters should unite together in due commemoration of Independence.

Au order for "Pierce's brigade to press forward to the support of Gen. Twiggs," was followed by an order to leave the 16th, under Col. Out he last trip of the Falcon, a man calling himself Davy got on board at Paducah, and from various circumstances some suspicions were aroused as to his character. The clerk immediately put at him for his passage; he said he was a boatman, his occupation being a cook, and had but one dollar. He was told he must get more money or go ashore. After the boat arrived near Newburg, the clerk again went to him for money and he said he had none, but the steward or cook said he had, for he showed it to him—and he denied the fact. Upon enquiry it was found a deck passenger had lost aixteen doilars, and one other person sundry clothing.—The captain at once accused him and he denied it; but a few well-directed blows told belingly upou him, and he at once disgarged, saying: "He as easy with me as you can." Yeast, Saleratus, or other allied substances, for walls the forment raises the bread, it also chemically changes the Sagar, gluten and fibrine, the nutritions and palarable components of all good Flour, into mert, deleterious, and iess agreeable substances, and the alkalise carbonates overcharge the bread, and communicate to it a very disagreeable so apy taste and smell, and frequently an unnatural yellow color. On the other hand, the Powder renders the bread light and spongy, very palatable, and much more digestible; it leaves the chemical constitution of the bread the same, and communicates neither taste, color or odor, and is very wholesome, particularly in the Summer meason. A single trial will convince the most sceptical of its efficacy.
